

QUEEN MARGARET ROAD – PERMANENT ROAD CLOSURE

Glasgow City Council closed a section of road at Queen Margaret Road/Kelvinside Terrace South in September 2022 because of concerns about subsidence.

Since then, their surveys and assessments have confirmed that the 60 Steps Retaining Wall and neighbouring properties remain safe, but the side of the road beside the Kelvin is no longer considered suitable for vehicles and is only capable of supporting light traffic such as pedestrians or cyclists. The side of the road beside the 60 Steps retaining wall remains safe for use by vehicular traffic but will no longer be accessible by car.

The Council proposes to install a lockable gate to one side of the area of road that is currently closed so that the road surface, drainage, street lighting and public utilities can all be maintained. The other side will be permanently shut

The area will still be accessible on foot and by cycle

The parking bays currently sited along the north side of Kelvinside Terrace South, in front of the tenement flats, will be relocated to the south side of the road and access to Doune Quadrant will only be possible via the ramp at Kelvinside Terrace South.

Approximately 9 parking spaces will be permanently removed.

Local councillor Martha Wardrop and the Community Council are collecting comments about this proposal.

If you want to respond, they have provided their email addresses. They are:

The deadline for comments is 3rd September.

There is also a meeting on site on 4th September at 10.00 where local Councillors and Council Officers will be present.

vehicle access to properties on the route marked in blue only possible via Kelvinside Terrace West this section of road noted in orange will be permanently closed to traffic (but a gate to one side will allow temporary vehicle access for maintenance)
